

Best Practices to Support International Students

Did you know that UCLA is ranked in the top 10 for the number of international students at U.S. institutions of higher education? UCLA serves international students from over 120 countries, and many more cultures from around the world. Consider utilizing these best practices to support international students on your campus..

- Perceive international students as assets to the campus community.
- Integration is key: connect students to resources and people.
- Be mindful of cultural differences.
- Assist with decoding: popular culture, slang, and terminology
- Non-verbal behaviors are important
- Think twice when making assumptions
- Remain curious and create space for feedback

2017 Dashew Center for International Students and Scholars
UCLA

ACE: Advising Communities of Excellence
Professional Development Program
UCLA