Transfer Credits 101

Students may be able to apply transfer coursework, courses taken at other academic institutions, to fulfill UCLA degree requirements. It can be a useful tool for reaching your goals or making progress in your studies. Below are answers to some common questions students have about applying transfer credits to University and College requirements:

Who Should I Consult with to Fulfill my Requirements with Transfer Credits?

- Students should consult with their College Advising unit if they would like to fulfill the following degree requirements with transfer credits:
 - American History and Institutions
 - Diversity
 - Writing II
 - Quantitative Reasoning
 - College Foreign Language
 - General Education Requirements
- Students wishing to satisfy the Entry Level Writing or Writing I requirements should consult the the Writing Programs Office.
- For major and minor requirements, students must consult with their respective departments.

How Do I Petition a Transfer Course for a University or College Requirement?

- Students are first encouraged to visit Transferology.com to check whether the course they are petitioning has already been articulated for credit or reviewed.
 - If a course is listed as approved for a requirement on the Transferology, you will not be required to submit a petition.
- If the course you wish to complete is not listed in Transferology, please refer to the College Advising Transfer Course Credit Database to see if it has been approved or denied by petition. This database is only for College requirements.
 - If a course is "approved" for a requirement, upon receipt of an official transcript, the course should automatically be applied to the requirement it has been approved for.
- If the course you wish to complete is not on Transferology or the Transfer Course Credit Database, a Transfer Course Credit Petition must be submitted online to their College advising unit.
 - Petitions must include a digital copy of the course syllabus from the term the course is taken, or other relevant and appropriate information
